

AASL IdeaLab Rubric – 2021

Proposal Title: _____

	POOR (1 point)	DEVELOPING (2-3 points)	EXCELLENT (4-5 points)	SCORE
The content of the proposed program connects to the AASL National School Library Standards for Learners, School Librarians, and School Libraries.	Presenter attempts to connect the AASL National Standards to proposal, but main ideas are vague and unclear.	The presenter has made a clear beginning in relating the proposal to the AASL National Standards, though more expansion is needed to support the connection.	The connection between the proposal and the AASL National School Library Standards for Learners, School Librarians, and School Libraries is thorough and well supported.
The presentation is concise enough to fit the format of the IdeaLab (i.e., the presenter can adequately share the information in 5 minutes or less).	The proposal topic attempts to cover too broad a topic to fit the IdeaLab format.	With feedback, the proposal could be altered slightly to better fit the IdeaLab format.	The presenter understands the IdeaLab format and can adequately share the information in 5 minutes or less.
Information presented will appeal to a broad audience.	Information cannot be adapted to a variety of circumstances or audience needs.	There could be replication, but it would require additional assets that may not be readily available.	Subject matter is malleable and adaptable to a broad audience and varied circumstances. Audience will be able to adapt or apply in their own situations.
The proposal is creative and innovative. The presentation of issue(s) and the method used to solve the issue(s) are unique.	The presentation offers no new or innovative perspectives.	The presentation offers some new or innovative perspective on an issue or problem but does not fully develop the ideas.	The topic offers a new or highly innovative perspective on an issue or problem. It may present a new solution to an ongoing problem or may present a new idea that has not been previously addressed.
Proposal includes all required elements; is well organized, clear, and concise.	Presentation ideas and details are loosely strung together. There is no clear sense of direction to carry the audience from point to point.	The organizational structure of the presentation would allow audience to follow without undue confusion. Sequencing of main ideas seems appropriate and purposeful	The order, presentation, or structure of the proposal is compelling. The entire presentation has a strong sense of direction and balance. The key issues stand out clearly. It is well organized, clear, and concise.
Comments:				AVERAGE SCORE (your total score/5)